Final Project Proposal (A7)

You will turn in a proposal for the final assignment. You will turn in a proposal for your final project that will describe and the address the following:

Your answers must be written legibly.

1. What is your topic? subject matter? Theme?
2. Describe in detail what exactly you are going to shoot images of.
3. Are you interested in a specific style? If so, describe that style.
4. Will your series have a narrative quality? If so, summarize the narrative for me.
5. Write about what you will have to do physically and technically to achieve the images you desire.
6. Will this be a sequence or series?

Example from 2007: I would like to do a documentary of the aftermath of the wildfires and how it affected people who lost their homes. I will have to travel to the areas that were affected by the fires. I will shoot images of the rubble of houses and images of the people who were "victims" and had lost their homes. Technically, I plan to create diptych images combining portraits of people with shots of their lost homes. The portraits will show the people's natural body language and facial expressions as they talk about the experience of losing their homes. I also plan to use quotes from the victims and write them down on separate piece of paper which will be mounted on the same board as the images. I might try printing black and white film for the rubble images and then sepia toning to create an effect to portray an element of mood, nostalgia, loss, or memory into the images.
